13.2 Policy - Basic Life Support Program - FUMC Students

- Introduction: Main objective of Basic Life Support (BLS) is not to 'treat' the person but to buy some valuable time until the emergency medical aid arrives followed by professional medical care to the patient. All over the globe great emphasis is placed on providing BLS training by professional institutes. BLS certification can equip medical as well as non-medical professionals with the required skills and knowledge. In Pakistan there is a significant lack of knowledge regarding the typical signs and risk factors associated with serious medical conditions among medical students. Basic life support consists of a number of medical procedures provided to patients with life threatening conditions of the body that cause pain or dysfunction to the person. Among the medical students / graduates of Foundation University a generalized lack of confidence in providing basic life support skills has been identified. This program has been designed to instill the importance of life, healthy heart and mind among our students. Over the course of this four hours workshop students will learn and practice basic life saving protocols, enhance their cognitive, clinical and critical thinking skills. The main focus is to contribute in building a healthy community through improving resuscitation skills of our future physicians.
- Goals: Main goal of this program is to train students of FUIC to save lives of victims of cardiac arrest by providing basic life support.

FAQs

PREFACE

I found that many students joining FUMC seem anxious and confused in the new environment and have many questions.

Many students approach me each year with their queries in search of the answer, although the information was available in Student Hand Book. However, I realized that students need help to peruse the handbook. So, to make the task easy for my dear joining students, I collected these questions and their answers from the appropriate offices of FUMC, and then DME consolidated them in a booklet.

These FAQs complement the Students' Hand Book.

The DME – FUMC welcomes the students and sincerely hopes they find it useful.
